Investment strategy

SKAGEN Kon-Tiki Lux is a value-based emerging markets equity fund that seeks to generate long-term capital growth by investing in a high conviction portfolio of companies which are listed in, or have significant exposure to, developing markets. The fund is actively managed and applies a contrarian and price-driven investment process to create a portfolio that is typically biased towards small- and mid-cap companies, and trades at a material discount to its benchmark based on traditional valuation metrics as well as to intrinsic value.

This product does not include any protection from future market performance so you could lose some or all of your investment.

Portfolio manager commentary, February 2026

Global equity markets moved higher in February, extending the positive tone from January, albeit with increased dispersion beneath the surface. Emerging Markets equities continued to outperform Developed Markets on continued enthusiasm around AI-related capex over concerns related to business models perceived to be at risk of disruption. SKAGEN Kon-Tiki has maintained a holistic approach to its AI exposure and thus avoided any major drawdowns. As a result, the fund continued to outperform its benchmark and broader equity indices.

Samsung Electronics was again the largest contributor during the month, benefitting from a combination of upward earnings revisions and a low starting valuation. Industry datapoints suggest supply remains tight in advanced nodes, reinforcing our view that this cycle may prove more durable than prior memory upcycles due to structurally higher AI-related demand. Hana Financial continued its strong performance, benefitting from improved sentiment towards Korean financials. The ongoing "Value Up" reform agenda has increased expectations of higher shareholder returns and improved capital discipline across the sector, which Hana continues to deliver against. TSMC was again among the top contributors during the month as it reported continued strong sales growth of 43% in January. Order visibility in advanced nodes remains strong, with sustained demand from AI and high-performance computing customers underpinning guidance of 30% growth for 2026. On the negative side, our larger Chinese holdings Ping An, Alibaba and JD.com declined amid continued weak macro indicators, especially related to consumption.

Portfolio activity remained high despite no new positions or exits in February. We increased our holdings in Naspers and Prosus, taking advantage of weakness related to its Tencent exposure, which fell on the back of regulatory and AI-related concerns. We also built positions towards target weights in Allegro, JD.com, Lojas Renner, Bank of the Philippine Islands and Life Insurance Corp. of India. Further additions were made to Hon Hai, Zhongsheng Group, Shenzhou International, UPL and Ping An on recent share price weakness, alongside smaller increases in Walmart Mexico, Coca-Cola Icecek and Sok Marketler in Turkey.

These increases were funded by trimming Korean positions such as Samsung Electronics, LG Electronics, Hana Financial, Korean Re and iM Financial that have performed strongly over the last 18 months. We also reduced Alibaba, Yara, Petrobras and Simpar as part of regular rebalancing of the portfolio.

At month-end, the portfolio traded at less than 10x earnings and 1.3x book value, compared with over 13x earnings and 2.5x book value for the MSCI Emerging Markets index. As a result, the portfolio retains its attractive absolute and relative value characteristics despite continued strong performance. In an environment where index returns remain concentrated and increasingly sentiment-driven, we believe disciplined, price-driven rebalancing and bottom-up stock selection remain the most reliable path to sustained outperformance, especially during periods of heightened geopolitical volatility.
